She went away "Lizzie" and came back "Elizabeth." And when she did come back, nothing in Pointview was quite good enough for her, so she thought she'd make the town over, and you ought to see what happened. You can see it if you attend the Oak Theatre today, where "Keeping Up With Lizzie," the picture version of Irving Bacheller's story made by Rockett and released by Hodkinson, will be shown. Enid Bennett, Otis Harlan, Leo White, Edward Hearn, Lila Leslie, Victor Bateman, and many other popular players are included in the cast.

On Friday members of the Road Committee of the Chamber of Commerce made a trip to the bridges in Logan canyon where the Christensen Construction is working. The abutments for the bridge at the forks are nearly in and this bridge will be ready for the traffic next year. There is a real job however, at the high bridge farther up the canyon. One abutment is in but unless good weather continues for some weeks it will not be possible to get the other abutment in this year. Nevertheless engineer English has every hope that the work can be completed early in the spring before the river rises. This bridge is the key to the whole canyon and if it is not ready in time, for the traffic, the next thing to do is to make a temporary bridge to reach on the abutment of the old bridge. The low road around the horse shoe bend would be under water for most of the early part of the summer and would therefore be very inconvenient. The company has had many difficulties to overcome and it is to be hoped they will be successful in getting this bridge completed in good time for the traffic next spring. In any event the traffic must go through even if a temporary bridge becomes necessary. The road to the Forks is like a boulevard and with maintenance like we have had on this part of the road, the entire road through the canyon will be very good. The special committee appointed to find a suitable building for the display of the paintings of the traveling exhibit of the Metropolitan Museum has decided to use the Methodist Church on the corner of Main and Center. The committee can arrange for the exclusive use of this church and with some changes and preparation, it can be made very suitable for the display.

An automobile collision occurred on Sunday in the canyon between a sedan driven and owned by Mr. O. A. Garff, and a roadster driven by Morris Nelson. Mr. Garff's car was considerably damaged and Mrs. Garff was cut about the face.

JOHN E. KELLERD

The only player now carrying aloft the banner of Shakespeare and the classical drama, John E. Kellard, who is to play an engagement at the Lyric Theatre on Wednesday, came of a theatrical family in England and made his first appearance on the boards in that country, playing "Hamlet" at the Kensington Theatre at the age of ten years. He came to this country early to join the Boston Museum, where after playing many parts and gaining through the constant change and hard work of those days a world of experience, he went over to the Boston Theatre where he became leading man in succession to W. J. Florence and Joseph Jefferson. Then for a time he started in such modern plays as "The Climbers," "The Cipher Code," "The Vampire," and "Taps," but returned to the classics when he co-started with Mme.

Modjeska in Shakespearean repertoire. It was Mr. Kellard who in his constant striving, for the highest dramatic ideals made the original production of "Oedipus Rex" in New York; a fact which was to be remembered by New Yorkers later when he proved to be the first player in the history of the American stage who could successfully carry performances of "Hamlet" over a period of 102 consecutive nights on Broadway. He has played in New York theaters every so-called star part in Shakespeare excepting "King Lear," a record held by no other player.

So keen always has been Mr. Kellard's interest in Shakespeare that he has lectured on the influence of Shakespeare on the English language before all the great universities of the country.
